

62% of voters are proud of America's history

July 15, 2020: Sixty-two percent (62%) of voters nationwide are proud of America's history. A Scott Rasmussen national survey found that 27% are not and 11% are not sure. However, for understandable reasons, 65% of Black voters are not proud of America's history.[1]

The survey also found that 78% of voters nationwide are proud to be an American. That total includes 61% of Black voters along with 68% of Hispanic voters and 83% of white voters.[1]

Other findings from the survey show that 52% consider themselves very patriotic and another 28% are somewhat patriotic. Older voters are significantly more patriotic. At the other extreme, by a 47% to 42% margin, voters aged 18-24 say they're not patriotic.[1]

Additionally, 48% believe the United States is a good role model for the world to follow while 35% disagree and 17% are not sure. A majority of white voters (52%) believe the U.S. is a good role model while a majority of Black voters (54%) disagree. Hispanic and other voters are evenly divided.[1]

Each weekday, Scott Rasmussen's Number of the Day explores interesting and newsworthy topics at the intersection of culture, politics, and technology. Columns published on Ballotpedia reflect the views of the author. Scott Rasmussen's Number of the Day is published by Ballotpedia weekdays at 9:00 a.m. Eastern. Columns published on Ballotpedia reflect the views of the author.

Footnotes:

1. ScottRasmussen.com, "78% proud to be an American; 62% proud of our history," July 12, 2020