Lt Col [REDACTED],

After further discussions and clarification between AFRC and the SG Consultant for Allergy and Immunology today here is how everything stands. As you and I discussed tonight there will not be any TEMP MED EXEMPTION. Claiming an allergy to a preservative in the vaccine without having had the vaccine is not a reason AFRC will approve an exemption. What it comes down to is you must take at least one COVID vaccine and have had an adverse reaction before you can claim an allergy to it. Additionally, submission of medical records by your civilian allergist will be required but the final decision to approve or deny your request for exemption will NOT be made only on data from a community or civilian allergist. DHA and or a consult with a designated military allergist must be completed. As it stands at this moment in time you are now refusing a direct order and ASIMS reflects you have refused to take the vaccine. I am sorry that it took all day long to get to this point, but the medical group was making sure we were doing the right thing. Please note I have copied your leadership on this email so they are aware of our conversation, and they will be reaching out to you as well to discuss moving forward. It is still imperative that you submit the medical records from your allergist for medical review by the providers at the AMDS.

Thank you for your time and I wish you the best,

V/r
